

"PARK TONOPAH" ON REESE RIVER WAS THE SCENE OF A GREAT TIME LAST SUNDAY

Cowboys and Beautiful Cowgirls Mingle With Campers In Festivities of an Old Fashioned Picnic Under the Waving Pines.

Head of Stewart Creek, Under the Cottonwoods and Pines, July 25, 1911 (noon):

If any person, who has decried the general hospitality and sociability of the farmer or rancher and wants "to be shown" that he has been laboring under a delusion, all that he has to do is to journey to the Reese River valley section and he will not alone find the genuine farmer hospitality, but the most productive farms in acreage in the whole state of Nevada. While talking of production, I might say, incidentally, the baby crop has not been neglected in this fertile section. Every household is blessed with from five to ten healthy offsprings, all happy, healthy children. I believe this soil will produce anything desired to.

Owing to the fact that unusual late rains have been the order of the day for the past week, something unheard of in this neck-of-the-woods, the entire valley population for a radius of eight miles decided to have a day of carnival and fun and so notified the denizens of "Camp Tonopah" that they would arrive at Park Tonopah on Sunday morning the 23rd day of July at 8 p. m., Pacific time, 50 strong, and everybody was to "whoop'er-up" for all day long.

Their program was carried out to the letter, at precisely 7:55 a. m. the procession of vehicles, autos and cowboys and beautiful cowgirls on prancing bronchos were seen coming down a lane that is lined on both sides with beautiful cottonwood trees, the lane ending a Tonopah Park, which is virtually an amphitheater with God's blue sky as a canopy for the ceiling.

Newton Crumley and the writer announced the coming of these good Reese River people with salutes of cartridges from their guns, and only ceased firing when reminded by their better halves that rageshens were plentiful and ammunition limited.

It could be readily seen at a glance that "King Joy" was to reign supreme for this one day of all days to the residents of the valley, and truly it was a happy day. Canvas had been provided which was laid upon mother's green swarth, and to the music of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Keough (by the way they are now prosperous farmers near Petaluma, Cal., and who left Austin 23 years ago and have just returned to visit Mr. and Mrs. George Keough and family)—violin and guitar—the beautiful lassies—and there are many in the valley—and the lads whirled in the dreamy waltzes and those laborious two-steps, the married couples found enjoyment in the old-fashioned quadrille, to the tune of "Old Dan Tucker." Too bad "Billy" Douglas, Jim McQuillan and Dan Robb were not here to enjoy the dance, as quadrilles are the only dances they can dance. Horse races and fancy roping occupied the attention of all for an hour in the afternoon.

At noon covers were laid upon the grassy meadow, and such a feast, all eatables being fresh from the ranches seven miles below Camp Tonopah. At 5 p. m. the meadow covers were again spread with luscious viands and again "all fell to" to do justice to the inner man. The following persons were present:

Mr. and Mrs. George Keough, Charles Keough, Miss Inez Keough, Mrs. W. E. Hales, Miss H. Kinell, Mr. and Mrs. George Dieringer, John Dieringer, George Dieringer, Jr., Herman Dieringer, Mr. and Mrs. John Schmaling, Miss Rose Schmaling, Miss Hilda Schmaling, Clarence Schmaling, Mrs. John Mayatt, Albert Mayatt, Mrs. George Gooding, Charles Gooding, Emerett Goodings, Mrs. T. J. Bell, Mrs. Sam Worthington, Mrs. W. L. Bell, Miss Cella Bell, Miss Millie Pendry, Miss Virginia Bell, Mr. and Mrs. William Hunter, Tonopah: Elmer Bell, Frank Bell, Miss Evelyn Pendry, Miss Elsie Pendry, George Gooding, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. M. Keough, Irvin Merten, Nate Shapino, John Schmaling, Jr., Milton Gooding, William Hunter, Jr., Miss Ruth Gooding, Roy Bell, William Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Crumley, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Booth, Tonopah.

At 6 p. m. the happy families of Reese River valley bade adieu to the denizens of Camp Tonopah and returned to their pleasant and beautiful homes. The writer wishes them continued prosperity and invites them to repeat the invasion.

Sagehens are plentiful and fishing all that we could wish for. Camp Tonopah is situated near the head of Stewart, about eight miles above the George Keough ranch and is an ideal outing spot. We have been in camp six days and have consumed 32 young sagehens, and oh, such eating. We expect to be home inside of two weeks.

GENERAL FUND IS EXHAUSTED

STATE OFFICERS AND OTHERS MAY BE FORCED TO WAIT FOR THEIR PAY.

The general fund of the state treasury is exhausted, according to reports received yesterday from Carson City, and it is probable that state officers and employees will be forced to wait several months before they can cash their warrants, unless they can be hypothecated to banks or individuals in the meantime.

There was some talk of an extra session of the legislature being called in order to adjust the matter whereby a transfer could be made to the general fund from other funds, but when the state officials started figuring up the cost, the idea was abandoned.

There is plenty of money in the various funds and over a half million in cash in the treasurer's office, but not a cent can be touched, according to the construction of the law, nor can the state borrow from the banks with the intention of repaying them when the various counties remit next December.

MINING MAN IS SERIOUSLY INJURED IN A RUNAWAY

WEBER THROWN FROM BUGGY DRAGGED HUNDREDS OF FEET AND BADLY HURT.

One of the narrowest escapes from death chronicled in Goldfield occurred shortly after noon Sunday when Arthur Weber was dragged for a distance of two blocks by a runaway horse, yet escaped without broken bones. He is, however, confined to his home as the result of a sprained hip and knee, several severe scalp wounds, a badly torn ear, and minor contusions and lacerations extending over his entire body.

Deputy County Assessor Frank Cosgrove, who dove through a court-house window and attempted to rescue Weber from what seemed certain death, also sustained serious bruises about the hips and back through being crushed against a fence by the careening buggy. He is, however, able to be about.

The accident occurred before 1 o'clock, while Weber was driving out Crook street enroute to the Queen Consolidated lease on the Atlanta property. Just as the fire station was reached, one side of the thills became loosened in some manner and fell, striking the spirited animal's hind legs. Swerving to the left the horse bolted, striking one of the trees in front of the court house and throwing Weber to the ground, as the rig turned into the alley between the court house and the residence of M. M. Detch. There the other bolt holding the shafts gave way.

Weber's left foot became entangled in the reins and as the rig made the turn into the alley he was dragged out and rolled over and over, his head striking the fence about the Detch property in such a manner that several severe gashes were cut in the scalp and his right ear was torn partially off. His chin, forehead and the left side of his neck were also badly torn.

The wheels of the buggy became entangled in a portion of an old plastered wall which was standing in the alley, which for a moment cut down the speed of the flying animal. It was at this juncture that Deputy Cosgrove leaped through the court house window and dove head first toward the dragging body of Weber. Just at this moment, however, the weight of the debris, which had locked in the wheels, caused the buggy to swerve clear around, and Cosgrove was crushed between the fence and the rear wheels of the vehicle.

Weber was dragged over him as the animal broke loose from the buggy. Though stunned by the fall, he had presence of mind enough to lift himself into a half-sitting position, and while in this predicament was dragged the entire length of the alley to Hall street, where the horse turned west, running to a point just north of the high school building. Here the frightened animal fell, choked by the weight of Weber's body dragging on the reins, one of which had become entangled about its neck.

Passersby hurried to release Weber from his perilous position, and he was carried to a nearby residence on Franklin street, where Dr. W. N. Burdick was called to attend him. Examination showed that, in addition to the injuries enumerated above, Weber had sustained a severe bruise on the left hip, while both knees and the shin of his left leg were badly cut and bruised.

Later in the day he was removed to his home on Columbia street, where he is reported to be resting easily though with a slight tendency toward fever. It is the opinion of his physician, however, that there is slight possibility of internal injuries. Weber will be confined to his home for several days.
